Can We Have an Honest Conversation? - Broken Together

*Maybe you and I were never meant to be complete
Could we just be broken together*

*If you can bring your shattered dreams and I'll bring mine
Could healing still be spoken and save us*

The only way we'll last forever is broken together

(© 2013 Sony/ATV Tree Publishing)

The above are the partial lyrics to a popular song Broken Together sung by Casting Crowns. This song is in my head right now because of my daughter's blog that I read on other day. I've included it below. The song is actually about a married couple going through some struggles. But, as I listen to the words and think about my daughter's words I can't help but think of the church. I am sure that almost every one of us knows someone (might be us) who is struggling.

But- talking about depression and other illnesses and conditions that affect the mind is not something we do well in our churches. Why? When did church become a place where people are expected to have it all together? Can we change that here at Chalfont? Every week we have many hurting people sitting in our pews and I can't help but wonder: What would it look like if we became a place that honored the brokenness in each of us? Let's begin the conversation.

Pastor Barb
I know everyone is writing about Robin Williams this week and normally I would avoid doing so for that reason, but I need to write this. I'm writing because my heart is broken, and I don't feel capable of doing anything today other than this. I really hate depression. Actually what I hate is darkness, hopelessness, and shame. All the havoc wreaked by what we refer to as "depression."

You know what else I hate? That there are no allowances made for those of us battling with this, day in and exhausting day out. I hate that we have to hide our struggle. I hate that the world expects us to function just the same as someone who does not have this heavy weight to carry around.

Well news flash- WE CAN'T. Those are unrealistic expectations that we cannot fulfill. But don't think we won't kill ourselves trying. We will try so hard, and we will exhaust ourselves, and we will fall into a broken pile of a million shattered pieces as we grieve our inability to be like "everyone else". Our skin color, and gender, and socioeconomic status mean nothing, because no amount of privilege can heal our suffering minds. Sure, you can say that some may have access to mental health care that others do not, but sometimes, no amount of doctors or medication can alleviate our suffering (Robin Williams is a prime example of this).

Depression is the great lever; it does not discriminate based on our social status. But can I share with you what you probably don't see? We can't fit into the mold of the world's standards, because we weren't meant to. Not because we aren't good enough, but because we were meant for so much more than that. We are creative, and we are sensitive, and we are passionate. On our best day, we can accomplish greatness far surpassing what most people can only dream of. On our worst day, we are closest to the heart of God and to the immense suffering of the world. You see, we can't turn a blind eye to it, like you can. We can't just get by in our daily lives. We have no choice but to feel the intense ache of a world longing for release from its shackles.

The truth is that the world needs us, just as we are. We are the game-changers. We are the voices of truth in the wilderness. We are the healers, and the creators, and the life-givers. So how about instead of trying to "fix us" and forcing us to fit into your mold, you instead allow us to be most fully ourselves? If we need to hide in our beds for awhile, then bring us a blanket and a cup of tea and encourage us to stay there for as long as we need to... because when we do have the strength to get back up (and eventually we will)- we will have mountains to climb that you cannot even begin to understand. And, we will walk up those mountains with the weight of the entire world on our shoulders, and we will continue to climb, step by treacherous step, because the world is depending on us, and we have work to do that you are not capable of. The burden falls on us and believe it or not, we really don't want to let you down. So let us rest today, for tomorrow we will most certainly be too busy moving mountains.

THE STORY*Finding Your Story in God's Story

In the last edition of our newsletter we told you about an exciting new study venture that we are embarking on this fall called the Story. The Story is a book of selections from the Bible, arranged chronologically, that reads like a novel. During this unique 31 week experience, every member of the family will read their own version of The Story. Come discover together with us how our story is found in God's story!

The Story begins at Chalfont on Sunday September 7.

The Story Church Campaign provides curriculum for all ages – toddler, children, teen and adult Sunday school; small group studies and 31 weeks of corresponding sermons (accompanied by reading through the five age-related books The Story, The Story: Teen Edition, The Story for Kids, The Story for Children, and The Story for Little Ones).

Each of our Sunday morning Christian Ed classes will be using this curriculum.

To supplement the study small group studies are being formed. The first set of small groups will begin the week of Sept. 7 and continue through the week of Nov. 23rd. (We will be taking a break to celebrate Advent and Christmas. The series will pick up on Sunday Dec. 28th)

Currently the small group studies to be held at the church will be held on Sunday evenings 6:30-8:00 PM (in the library or downstairs in fellowship hall depending on the size of the group). Tuesday mornings from 10:00 am – 11:30 am and also Tuesday evenings in the Family Life Center from 7:00 – 8:30 pm. One or two more small groups will be hosted in people's homes. We don't have the location, time or day for them as of this writing.

A display table of the resources we will be using has been set up in the Family Life Center and we encourage you to check it out. We are encouraging each family to purchase (through us for a large discount!) a copy of the Story. The cost is $7.00. We are asking participants in the small group studies to also purchase a copy of the Participant Small Group Study Guide (one per person). The cost is $3.85. (Anyone with financial difficulties may make other arrangements through the church office)

There is no need to purchase any materials for the children, but if parents or grandparents would like to have age appropriate copies of The Story for at home use they are available. Please see the display table for prices.
Order forms for resources are on the display table as well as a sign up sheet for the small group studies.
